ECONOMIC IMPACT OF GENERAL AVIATION

Did you know there are 5,136 public-use airports that can be directly accessed by general aviation? That is more than ten times the number of airports served by scheduled airlines. This makes general aviation uniquely situated to serve the public's transportation needs.

Check out this economic impact study by our partner Alliance for Aviation Across America and see the impact GA has in your community.

IN MEMORIAM

ACA is saddened by the recent loss of two incredible supporters of public benefit flying.

Robb Alpaugh - President and CEO of Mercy Medical Angels since July of 2015 and executive director of Angel Wings for Veterans, Angel Flight Mid-Atlantic, Angel Canines and Wounded Warriors and Angel Wheels programs. Robb was also past chairman of the board of Air Charity Network.

Mike Collins - AOPA Technical Editor and talented long-time supporter of public benefit flying. Mike has made many wonderful contributions to the aviation community that will continue to inspire a passion for flying among current and future aviators.

We extend our deepest sympathies to those who knew and loved Robb and Mike. Their compassionate hearts and impact on the aviation world will not be forgotten.
